

Famous names in Chicago business will again take the stage once occupied by legendary live acts like The Who and Pearl Jam at the 16th annual REACH Social.

The April 26 event, hosted by the Real Estate Action Committee for City of Hope (REACH), will feature five live bands, made up of professionals from the commercial real estate, development, construction, finance and legal industries in Chicago, providing 1,000+ partygoers a unique combination of networking, socializing and concert going.

The REACH Social, a sellout year after year, benefits cancer, diabetes and HIV/AIDS research at City of Hope.

2012 REACH Social · House of Blues, Chicago

On behalf of the Real Estate Action Committee for City of Hope, join us in advancing the research that will improve and save the lives of millions of people across the country and around the world. We hope you will be part of the hundreds of thousands who have supported City of Hope in its nearly one hundred year history.

"The best part about this event, in addition to being able to raise over $300,000 for cancer research, is the feeling that you are at your favorite college bar and know someone in the band," said REACH Social Chairperson Rick Dupraw of Leopardo. "Except, there are over a thousand of your professional peers, all having a great time, and the stage isn't the back of a little dive bar, it's one of the best live music venues in the city of Chicago."
