In a post-by Arthur & Rosita Kaplan Family conference center, 10 organizations will participate in the event that will raise awareness about colorectal, prostate and women’s cancers.

Executive Chef Christian Eggerling, Savoring Hope offers a series of classes for beginning, intermediate and experienced cooks. The classes focus on healthy foods by opening up a farmers market that will address the need for local food. These two community building grants will use the funds to promote community building among the most vulnerable clients.

HOLDING MONEY TO DO KIND AND WONDERFUL THINGS

Funding Program that will begin in January 2018 called the Kindness Grants. Ideas need to fall within the scope of our 2018-2021 INNOVATION TO HEALING COMMUNITIES

The Learning Gardens at Fairplex. Healthy Eating at the Barn of Sylar is a one-year program focused on how eating whole foods and getting some exercise impacts health. Seniors will be asked to participate in a series of small group activities like herding and cooking, and participate in monthly health education workshops. They will conduct follow-up studies on the impact of healthy food and activity on food security and health. A quarterly update from the Department of Community Benefit

In this issue: Meet the 2017 Healthy Living grantees, employees can do good in the community with the Healthy Living Grants. Three new community building grants were awarded to local organizations that have important work to do, but do not fit with the category of Healthy Living. The Kare Youth League will use the funds to redesign and create a new community building program.

The emphasis is on mobile health, we want to let you know about a new internal community benefit program that will begin in January 2018 called the Kindness Grants. These two community building grants were awarded to local organizations that have important work to do, but do not fit with the category of Healthy Living. The Kare Youth League will use the funds to redesign and create a new community building program.

To learn more or process ideas, send a note to nchawkins@coh.org or visit the City of Hope website at www.coh.org.

How can you do something good in the community that connects your work with the mission of the Foundation? How can you promote health and wellness across the entire organization? Would your work benefit from a local health grant? We want to let you know about a new internal community benefit funding program that will begin in January 2018 called the Kindness Grants. These two community building grants were awarded to local organizations that have important work to do, but do not fit with the category of Healthy Living. The Kare Youth League will use the funds to redesign and create a new community building program.

To deepen understanding about Community Benefit activities here at City of Hope, send us a note: A quarterly update from the Department of Community Benefit

In this issue: Meet the 2017 Healthy Living grantees, employees can do good in the community with the Healthy Living Grants. Three new community building grants were awarded to local organizations that have important work to do, but do not fit with the category of Healthy Living. The Kare Youth League will use the funds to redesign and create a new community building program.

To learn more or process ideas, send a note to nchawkins@coh.org or visit the City of Hope website at www.coh.org.

How can you do something good in the community that connects your work with the mission of the Foundation? How can you promote health and wellness across the entire organization? Would your work benefit from a local health grant? We want to let you know about a new internal community benefit funding program that will begin in January 2018 called the Kindness Grants. These two community building grants were awarded to local organizations that have important work to do, but do not fit with the category of Healthy Living. The Kare Youth League will use the funds to redesign and create a new community building program.

To deepen understanding about Community Benefit activities here at City of Hope, send us a note: A quarterly update from the Department of Community Benefit

In this issue: Meet the 2017 Healthy Living grantees, employees can do good in the community with the Healthy Living Grants. Three new community building grants were awarded to local organizations that have important work to do, but do not fit with the category of Healthy Living. The Kare Youth League will use the funds to redesign and create a new community building program.

To learn more or process ideas, send a note to nchawkins@coh.org or visit the City of Hope website at www.coh.org.

How can you do something good in the community that connects your work with the mission of the Foundation? How can you promote health and wellness across the entire organization? Would your work benefit from a local health grant? We want to let you know about a new internal community benefit funding program that will begin in January 2018 called the Kindness Grants. These two community building grants were awarded to local organizations that have important work to do, but do not fit with the category of Healthy Living. The Kare Youth League will use the funds to redesign and create a new community building program.

To deepen understanding about Community Benefit activities here at City of Hope, send us a note: